[Multicul-Pluralism Grp] AN INTRODUCTION TO HOLY QURAN

- Mohammed Farooq

- 6 Sep 2008

To

- Multiculturalism-PluralismGroup@yahoogroups.com

The word Qur'an means 'reading', and the book of that name claims to be a universal book of guidance for the whole of mankind. The Qur'an consists of 114 chapters (suras). Each chapter (sura) is divided into a number of verses (ayats, see note 1). The first sura has seven verses and is the key to the Qur'an. The longest sura is the second sura. It has 286 verses and can be regarded as the summary of the Qur'an. The Qur'an is not a book of religion in the conventional sense of the word 'religion'. It is, in reality, the book of 'Nature' to guide mankind to the way we must live on this planet with the least possible conflict, i.e. with balance and harmony, not only with the people of the world but also with the natural world.

The Qur'an was sent down as a revelation to the Prophet Muhammad (AS, or pbuh, -- see notes 2 & 3 at the end of this section) through Gabriel<sup>A1</sup> (Jibreel). It was written down and compiled in the form of a book by the prophet during his lifetime without any alteration and the book (Al-Kitab) remains unspoilt since that time. As an additional safeguard it was also memorised by many people during the prophet's lifetime.

The Qur'an claims, very clearly, that it is the Word of Allah (see notes 4, 5, 6 & 7) and not the word of the prophet. The prophet's position vis-à-vis the Qur'an is that the Word of Allah was uttered by the prophet when he was inspired with the revelation. So, in effect the Qur'an becomes the utterance or 'the sayings' of the prophet. Therefore, in this case only, one cannot make a distinction in this regard between the two - i.e. 'the Word of Allah' and 'the sayings of the prophet' – since they are one and the same. This is why Allah says in the Qur'an "follow the prophet": in order that we should follow the Qur'an and practice the teachings of the Qur'an. However, the Qur'an warns us that if the prophet were to utter anything of his own, in his own words, and incorporate it into the Qur'an then he would be severely punished and no one would be able to save him.

We must clearly understand that to follow the prophet, as stated in the Qur'an, implies to follow what was inspired in him through revelations. This does not mean following what has been written regarding his sayings and practices by fallible people some 250 years later, and primarily collected by word of mouth. This literature, called the Hadiths, is full of contradictions with the Qur'an and that in itself is the proof that it has nothing to do with the prophet. To prove this point I have outlined some of the major contradictions of the Hadith literature with the Qur'an in a separate chapter of this book. We should never overlook the fact that, had the prophet been so keen on the importance of his own sayings he would have arranged to have these written down during his lifetime. At the very least his immediate companions would have done so had they been aware of such an intention. However, neither did so.

The Qur'an declares that those who follow and practice the guidance given in the Qur'an will be called 'Muslims', which means those who submit to the Will of Allah, as given in the Qur'an; and their way of life is called 'Islam' meaning 'peace', i.e. living in full harmony with people of the world and also with the environment. The words 'Islam' and 'Muslim', therefore, have no sectarian connotation and will always remain universal in their implications. The Qur'an says very clearly that the names Islam and Muslim originated from the time of Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) who was given the title of the Leader of Mankind. The Qur'an names many other prophets, including Musa (Moses) and Isa (Jesus), who came after Ibrahim (Abraham), and the last prophet named is Prophet Muhammad, and as there would be no other prophet after him, he is also known as the Seal of the Prophets.

The universal message given by Allah is the Qur'an, and as far as the believers are concerned it is their duty to pass the message i.e. the Qur'an, to others (3:187). The Qur'an states however that there must be no compulsion in its implementation, and acceptance or rejection of the Qur'an must be based on free will. This is why the Qur'an classifies people into two groups: (i) 'The believers' (mumins) who submit to the guidance given in the Qur'an, and (ii) 'the non-believers' (kafirs) who do not regard the Qur'an as the Word of Allah and hence do not follow its guidance. Yet it does not mean that the latter are condemned, as the door is always open to become a believer. 'Kafir' is therefore not a derogatory word.

The Qur'an also claims very strongly that the revelation that was given to Prophet Muhammad is nothing new as the same book (Al-Kitab) was given to all the prophets. But because of human interference, all other existing books containing the Word of Allah got mixed up with the words of the prophets and of others, and this is why The Qur'an came as the last revelation, intact with the Word of Allah alone. The main teachings given to the previous prophets are fully preserved in the Qur'an as the Qur'an claims that the same universal message was given to all the prophets. In this study I have included a chapter on the Jewish scriptures and the Bible, in order to clarify their importance with reference to the Qur'an. Other relevant topics are arranged in such a way as to give an overall picture of the Qur'an, so that if one is interested one can follow it up with further studies, culminating finally in the study of the Qur'an. One point must be clearly understood: the beauty (and unique reliability) of the Qur'an lies in the fact that in the case of any conflict or confusion arising from a translation of the Qur'an, one can always go back to the original Arabic words to check the validity of the translation. This is not possible with any other book of "religion" as the 'originals' of these books do not exist.

Regrettably, there have been many mistranslations of Qur'anic verses. I have used a chapter on this to point out some of these, with direct reference to the Arabic words, in conformity with their context. After all Allah says, in many verses, that the best explanation is given by Allah(re: 75:19; 41:3; 17:41; 17:89; 39:27; 18:54; 30:58; 6:65; etc.)

THIS STUDY IS ARRANGED IN A SEQUENTIAL MANNER, BUT THE DIFFERENT SECTIONS CAN BE READ INDEPENDENTLY. I sincerely hope that it will be read with an open mind and without bias, and that it will lead to a further study of the Qur'an, the final revelation of Allah for the guidance of mankind.

Note 1: The verse (ayat) numbers given for some chapters (suras) can vary by 1 or 2, either way, due to slight variations in methods of numbering of verses by certain translators. The reader is requested to keep this in mind, particularly in consulting the translations by Yusuf Ali and G.A. Parwez.

Note 2: It is customary for Muslims to utter the phrase 'Alayhe-Sal-lamm' which you may see as (AS) in some publications, and which means 'peace be upon him' (also abbreviated to 'pbuh' in places) after the name of any prophet. I, therefore, hope that Muslims will do so when any prophet's name is read in this book.

Note3: I have used the word 'prophet' as the English translation for the Arabic 'nabi', as there is no truly equivalent word in English. A nabi receives wahi - or revelation - from Allah, whereas the word 'prophet' implies the capacity to foretell future events. The reader is requested to bear this distinction in mind.

Note 4: I have used the Arabic word Allah instead of God, the usual English translation, for the Sustainer of the whole universe. This is because the word 'Allah' is uniquely defined in the Qur'an and association of any partners with Him is strictly forbidden. He is One, but has many attributes like All-pervading, All-knowing, Beneficent, Merciful, etc.

Note 5: All Arabic words except Allah, Qur'an, sura, Islam and Muslim have been written in italics.

Note 6: All underlining, and words in bold or italics, are done by the author to make important points stand out.

Note 7: The reader is asked to bear in mind that in many verses of the Qur'an the 'royal we' is used; that is, Allah refers to Himself in the plural (We, Our, Ours). As in the case of royalty, this usage carries a singular sense, but with added dignity befitting royal personages. In the Qur'anic context its usage also indicates that Allah is not a person in our accepted, conventional sense.

[Multicul-Pluralism Grp] The Essence of Ramadan By Dr. Jamal Badawi

- Erooth Mohamed

- 7 Sep 2008

To

- Multiculturalism-PluralismGroup@yahoogroups.com

Heart Softening:

The Essence of Ramadan ***

http://www.islamonline.net/English/Ramadan/Heart\_Softening/Softening/16.shtml

By Dr. Jamal Badawi, Muslim Intellectual — Canada

Like other Islamic injunctions, the benefits of Ramadan are not limited to either "spiritual" or "temporal" elements of life. In Islam, the spiritual, social, economic, political and psychological intermingle in a consistent and cohesive whole. For convenience of presentation, the significance of fasting is discussed under four subheadings; spiritual and moral, psychological, social, and physical and medical.

Spiritual and Moral Elements

- 1- Above all, fasting is an act of obedience and submission to Allah the Almighty. Submission and commitment is based upon love for Almighty Allah and earnest effort to gain His pleasure and avoid His displeasure. If this is the only reason for fasting, it surely suffices.
- 2- Fasting is an act acknowledging Allah the Almighty as the Only Master and Sustainer of the universe. It is only through His bounties that we have our existence and sustenance.
- 3- Fasting is an act of atonement for our errors and mistakes, as the Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him) said: "Whoever fasts (the month of) Ramadan on the basis of faith and seeking (the pleasure of Allah), his past errors are forgiven." (Ahmad)
- 4- Fasting trains the believer in taqwa (piety and fear of Allah). If one volunteers to refrain from lawful food and sex, he or she will be in a better position to avoid unlawful things and acts.
- 5- Fasting trains the believer in sincerity. Unlike other acts of worship, it is entirely based on self-restraint. Others can never know for sure if the person is fasting or if he broke the fast in secret. Self-restraint requires a high degree of sincerity and faithfulness.
- 6- Fasting teaches other virtues. Fasting does not exclusively mean refraining from food and drink. Essentially it means refraining from all vice and evils. The Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him) said: "If one does not abandon falsehood in words and deeds, Allah has no need for his abandoning his food and drink." (Al-Bukhari)
- 7- The spirit of Ramadan with its nightly voluntary prayer (called Salat Al-Qiyam or Tarawih Prayer) and frequent recitations and study of the Glorious Qur'an provides a chance for spiritual revival (a kind of annual spiritual overhaul).

8- Fasting is a form of jihad (striving for Allah). It teaches self-discipline and enhances one's ability to master his needs and desires rather than be enslaved by them.

Psychological Elements:

- 1- It enhances the feelings of inner peace, contentment and optimism. These feelings result from the realization of Allah's pleasure.
- 2- It teaches patience and perseverance and enhances the feeling of moral accomplishment.
- 3- Voluntary abstinence of lawful appetites leads one to appreciate the bounties of Almighty Allah which are usually taken for granted.
- 4- For a whole month every year, Muslims go through a different and exciting experience that breaks the normal routine of life. Not only can this be refreshing, it also teaches the person to adapt to varying conditions and circumstances in his life.

Social Elements:

- 1- Fasting promotes the spirit of unity and belonging within the Muslim Ummah. Millions of Muslims all over the world fast during the same month; following the same rules and observances.
- 2- Fasting promotes the spirit of human equality before Allah the Almighty. Muslims, males and females, rich and poor from all ethnic backgrounds go through the same experience of deprivation with no special privileges for any group or class.
- 3- Fasting promotes the spirit of charity and sympathy toward the poor and needy. A rich person may be able to "imagine" the suffering of the poor or "think" about hunger. Yet, one can not fully appreciate suffering or hunger until he actually "experiences" or "feels" them. This may explain, in part, why Ramadan is also known as the month of charity and generosity.
- 4- Fasting promotes Islamic sociability. Muslims are urged to invite others to break the fast with them at sunset and to gather for Qur'anic study, prayer and visits. This provides a better chance for socialization in a brotherly and spiritual atmosphere. The Prophet (peace and blessings be upon him) indicated on more than one occasion that inviting a fasting person to break his fast (after sunset) is an act which is highly rewarded by Allah the Almighty.

Physical and Medical Elements:

A great deal has been written about the medical and health benefits of fasting; both by Muslim and non-Muslim scientists. These benefits include the elimination of harmful fatty substances from the blood stream, helping the cure of certain types of intestinal and stomach ailments and the renewal of body tissues. Needless to say that some ailments may be aggravated by fasting in which case the person is exempted from fasting. For those who may be engaged in Islamicially (and medically) undesirable habits such as over-eating or smoking, the self-control and discipline exercised in Ramadan provide an excellent way to "kick" these bad habits. In a sense, fasting is an annual physical overhaul of the body.

* It should be reiterated, however, that the main motive behind fasting is to obey Allah the Almighty and to seek His pleasure.

Dr. Jamal Badawi is a professor of management and religious studies, Saint Mary's University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada.

Who is founder of Chemistry, Algebra and so on?

Who is Bandukdar? Sultan Byber of Egypt.

Those were in the period of Caliphate.

So until we through out all present illegal Governors of illegal client States and their master and agents and special forces like you with bag of millions of dollar and pound in Muslim land we will suffer.

And could you please provide me the list of Scientists, Inventors, Philosophers, Reformers, Inventors, Innovators and Nobel Prize Winners etc these Universities or any other Universities in Moslim Countries have produced in last 200 years?

How is wealth created?

1. By starving and looting the weak or by the one's I'm asking a list of?
2. By advancing Sciences and Technologies, by Research and Development, by building Factories and Infrastructure or by reciting Qoraan, learning Qoraan by heart, making our children spend their lives learning minute details on Islam in the Universities you listed below?
3. What wealth of Moslims is being destroyed, when Moslims have no wealth?
4. Population 20% of the world, GDP 5% of the world despite all that export of Oil. Can people 4 times poorer than average country of the world be considered to have Wealth?
5. The most populous Moslim Countries, who can not produce enough to feed themselves, beg for Charity (Foreign Aid) and live-off Foreign Loans are wealthy?

Regarding the definition of university, which includes the ability to grant degrees in a wide range of fields, the categorization of many of the oldest learning institutions as de facto ancient universities in continuous operation could be controversial and problematic. For example, if the definition were broadened to include ancient institutions that did not originally grant degrees, were strictly religious schools for centuries or vanished without trace for long periods of time, then such categorization may agree with specific points of view which are not widely accepted.
